Foreword

The theme of Accolade 77 is focused on the student's life and viewpoint. We tried to show the 1976-77 school year as seen by the students.

The former yearbooks have always pictured the front of the school building — the irony of this is that the student sees it only when he is coming or going.

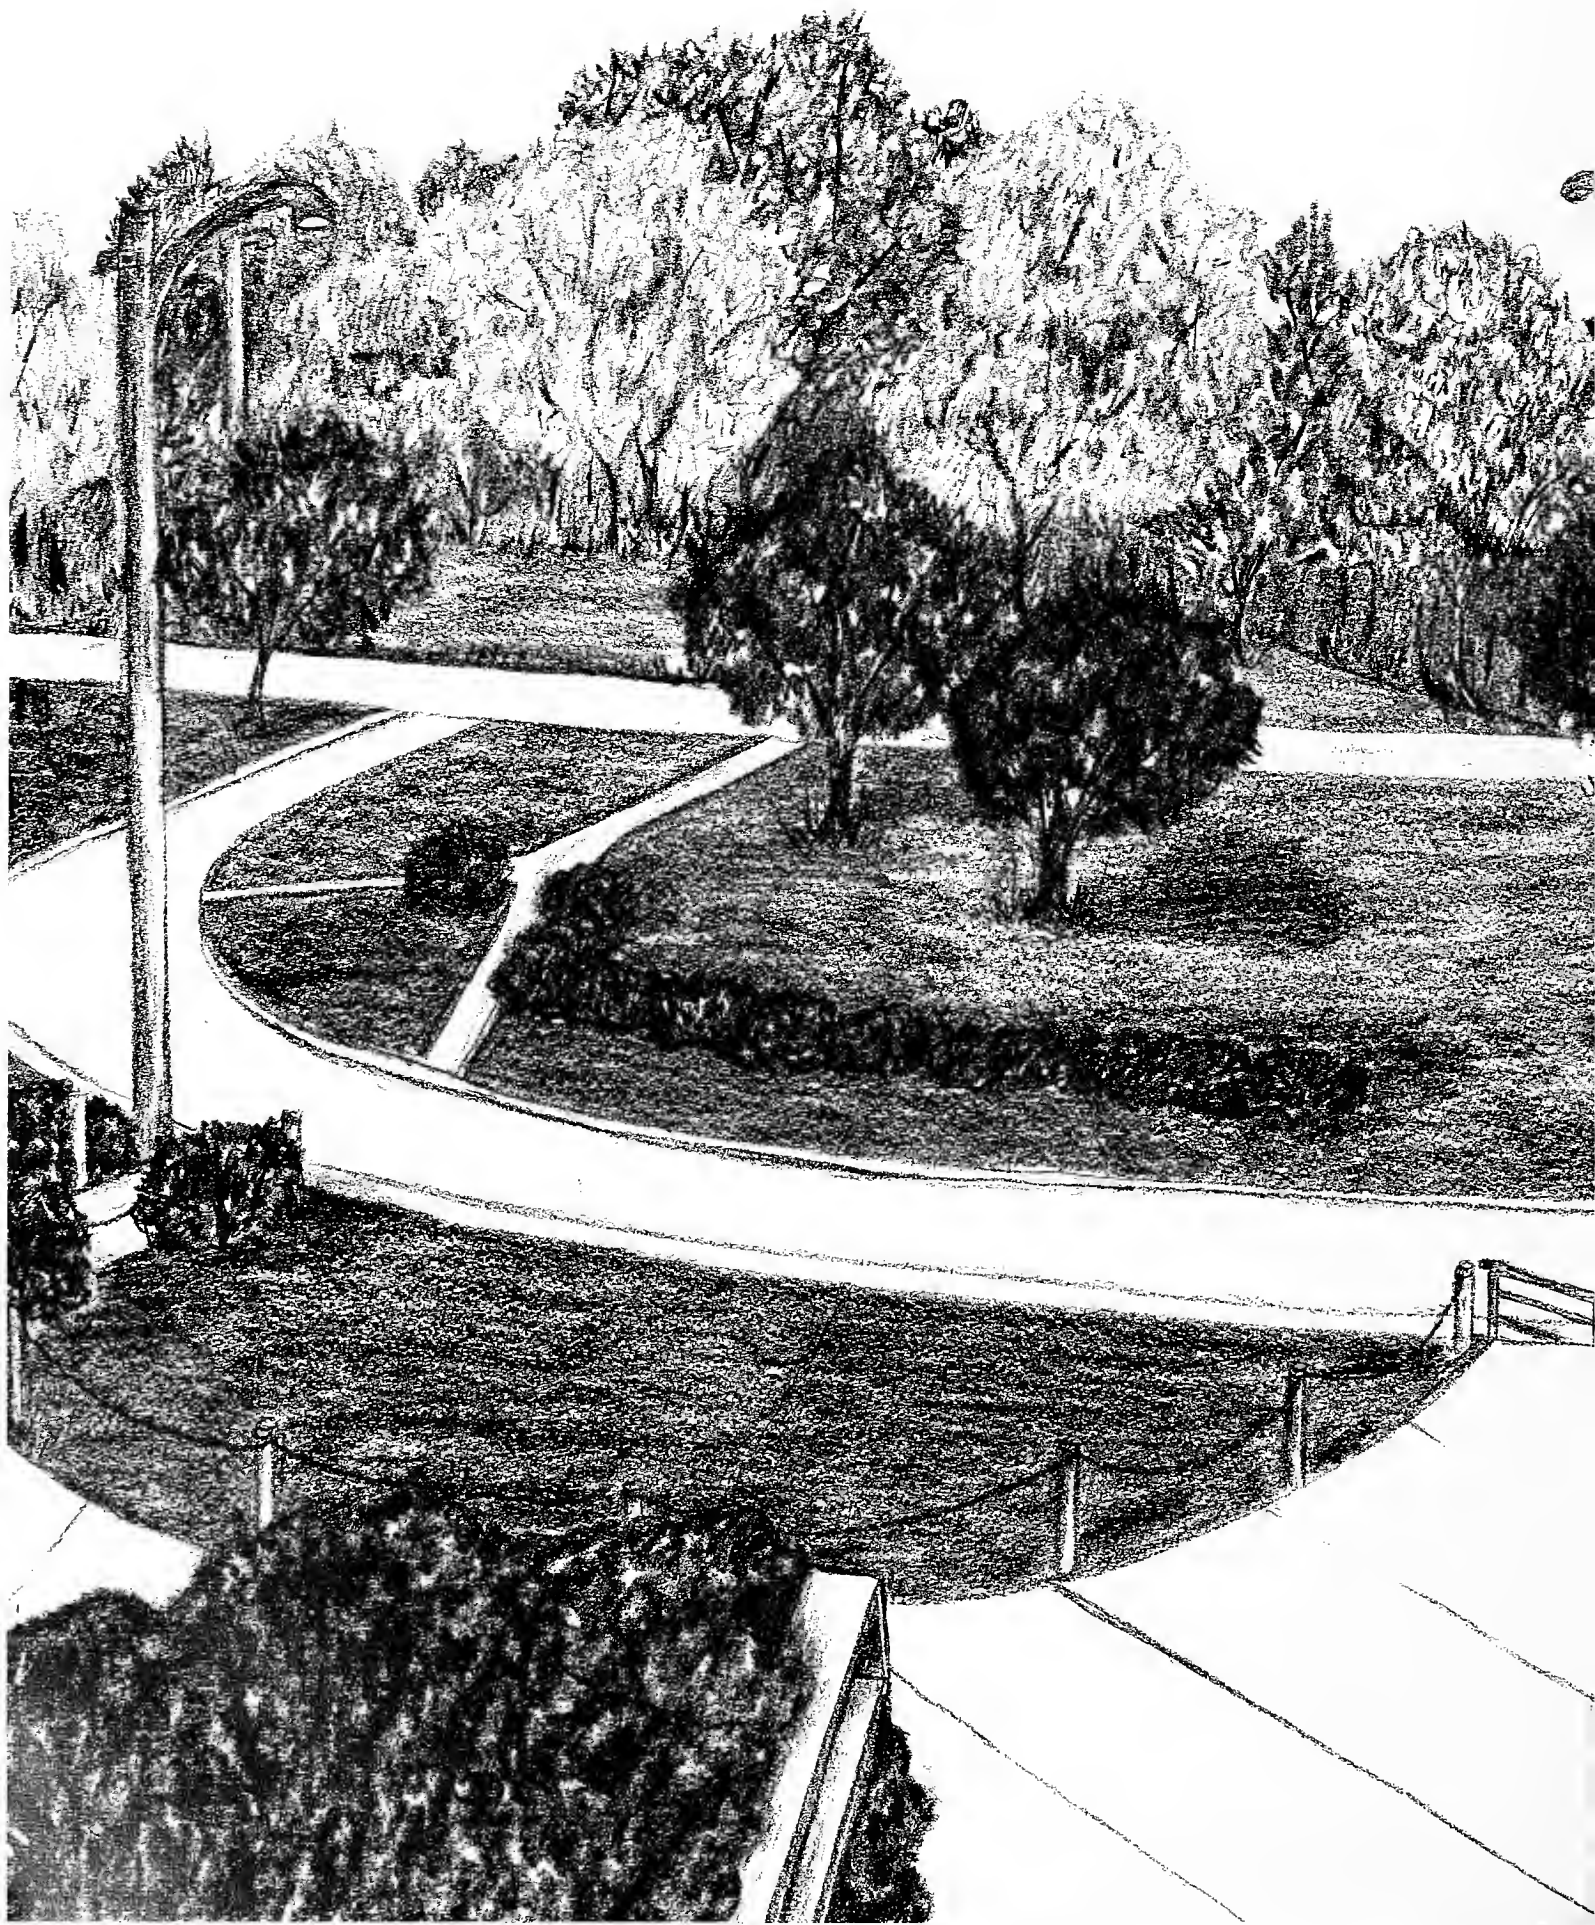

The 1977 cover exemplifies the scene through the students' eyes — spending most of their time looking out.

We tried to touch all the aspects of "Knight-Life," to give you a complete variety — covering Homecoming to the record-setting winter to Funarama.

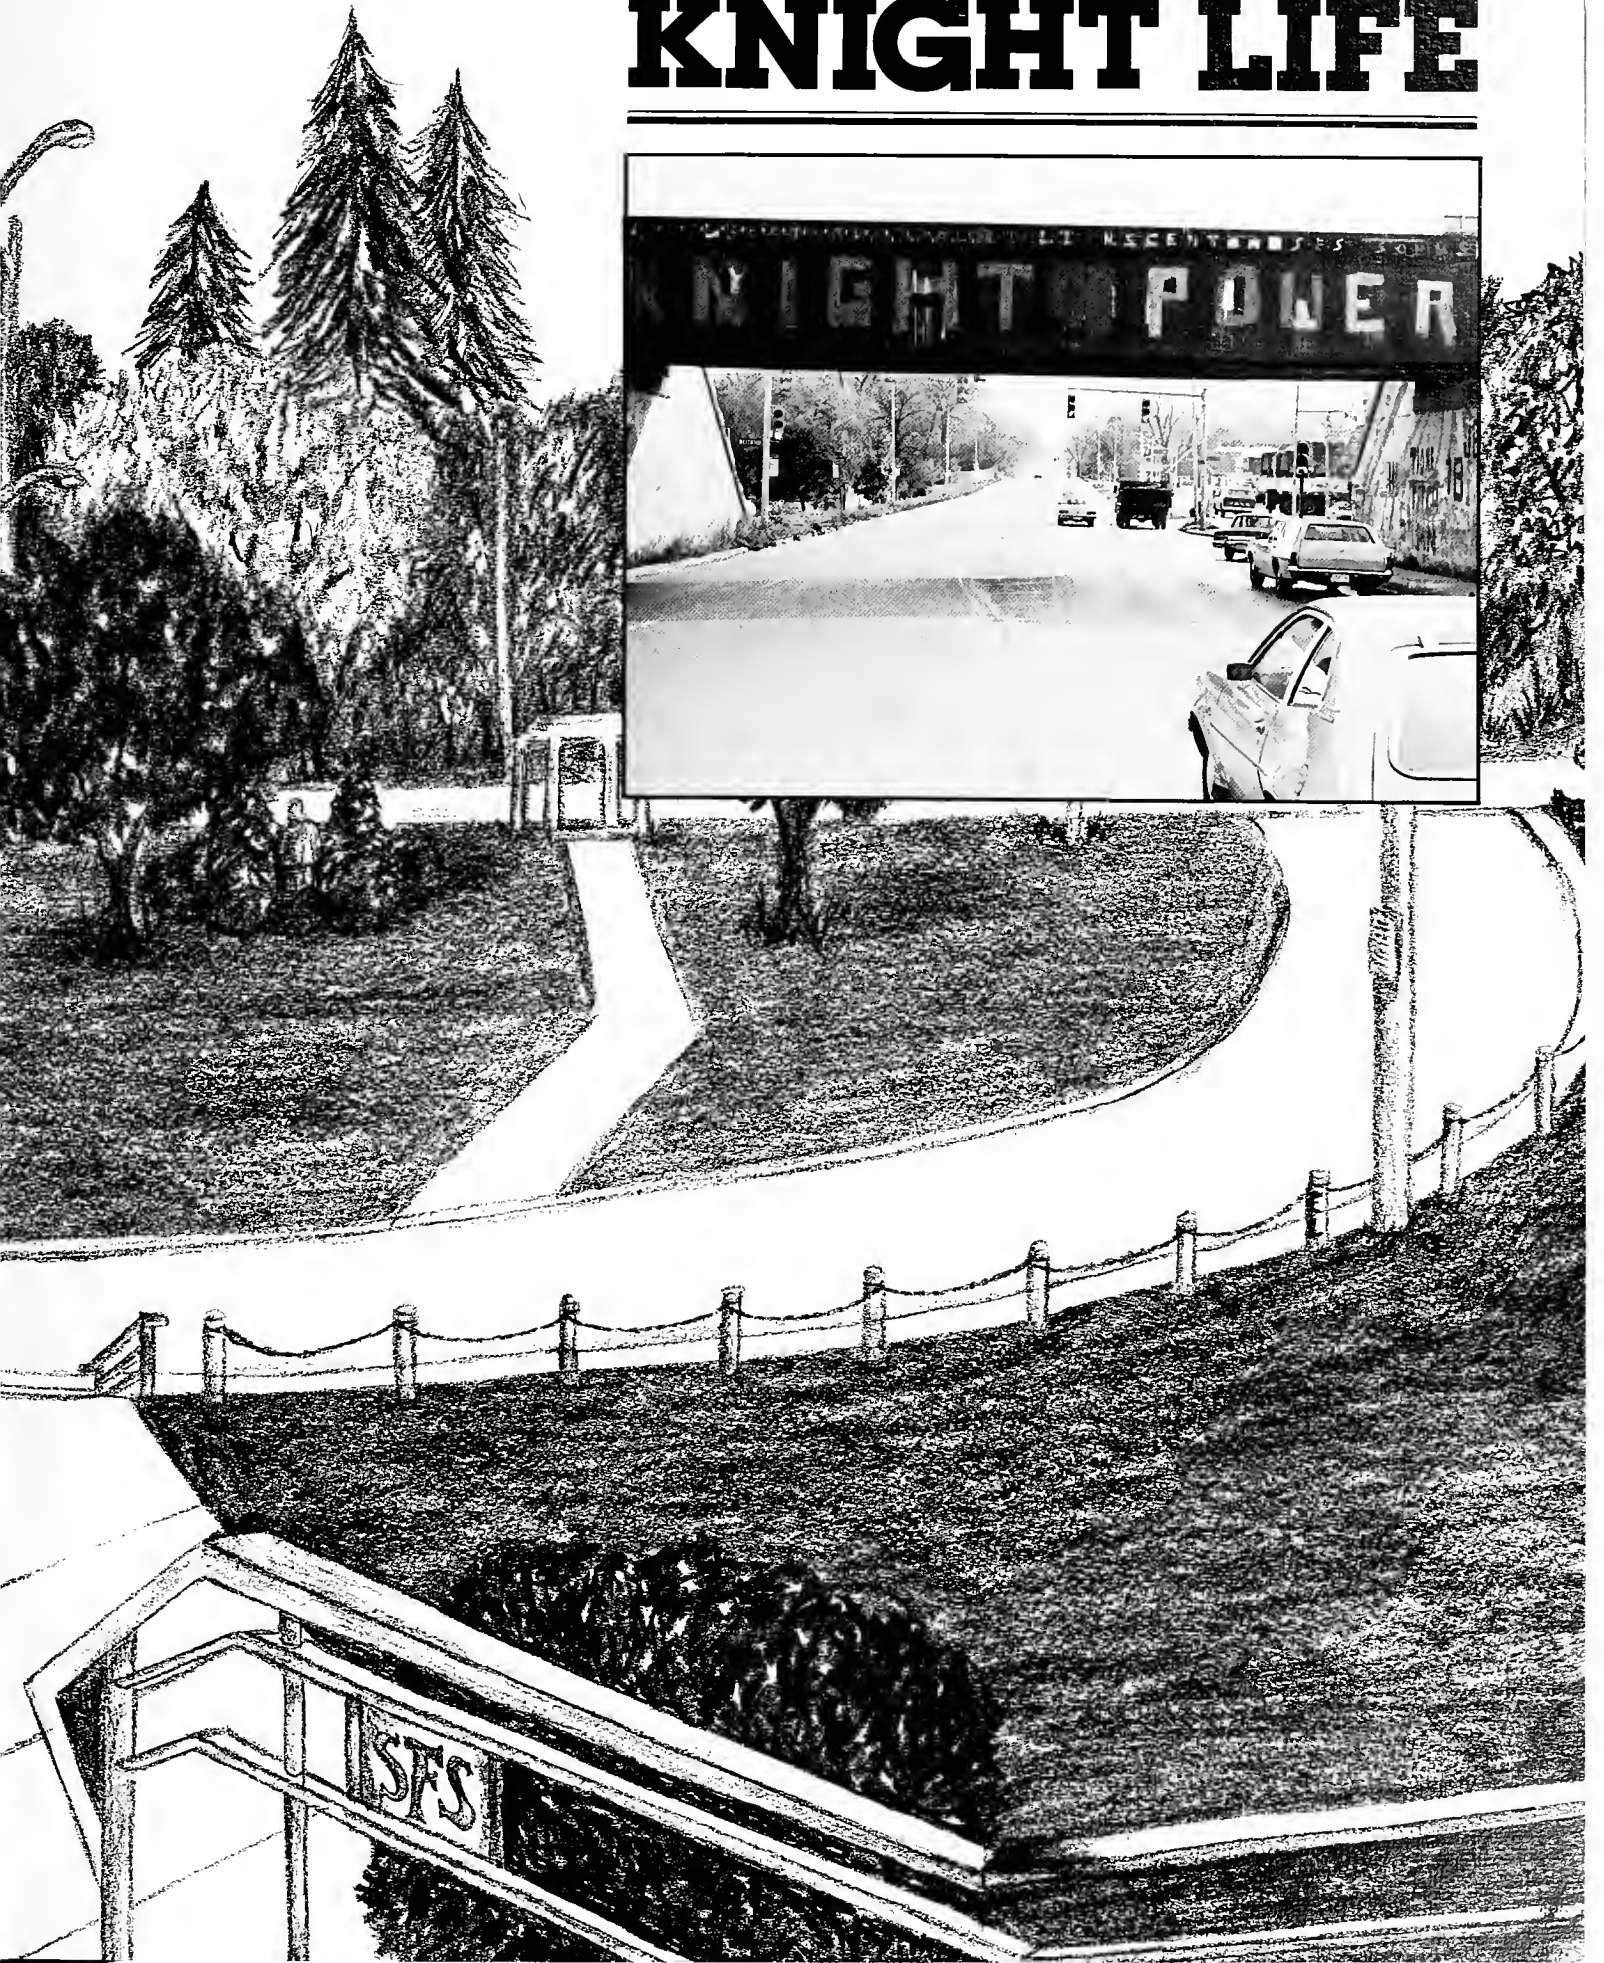

After four years of looking out, we hope the seniors can see a deeper meaning in these pages.

The staff has spent much time in preparing this book — it has cost them their study halls, free periods, nights of big games, and Saturday evenings.

All we are asking in return is that you take an objective look and not close it too fast.

Change and non-change played big parts in the 1976 Homecoming weekend of October 1-3. For the first time in St. Francis history, the game topping off the weekend festivities was played against Rogers on Sunday.

But preparations started weeks in advance when committees were formed, flower parties were held, and work was begun on the traditional class floats.

When Friday finally came students and advisors spent hours after school preparing and decorating the gym for the dance and transforming the cafeteria into a garden paradise for the roast beef dinner and live entertainment.

Fayrewether played for the dance and halfway through the evening, Diane Schuck of St. Ursula Academy, was named homecoming queen and was presented a heart-shaped locket instead of the traditional crown.

Knights relaxed at homecoming dance to the wide variety of popular music Fayrewether played.

Theatrics mixed with the music made for interesting

Fayrewether provided the music for a fun filled evening at St. Francis.

In order to keep the spirit of homecoming going throughout the weekend, Student Council sponsored a picnic and a car-smashing on Saturday, another first.

With Sunday came the excitement and festive atmosphere of the float-judging, the parade, led by the marching band, and the game. The freshman "Ramburger" won the float competition.

The Knight football team topped off the weekend perfectly with a strong offensive win over the Rams, 42-10.

Liturgies

The religious needs of the Knight community are satisfied by the numerous assemblies and Masses held during the year. Father Jim Doll, chaplain, and the members of the Liturgy Committee tried to plan something a little different and unique for each assembly. They tried to make the Masses more interesting and personal with slide shows, the acting out of biblical characters and their message, and Father William Fisher's Mass for the Seniors during the homecoming weekend.

Record snowfall and cold temperatures which closed area schools in January

Winter '77

The shortage of natural gas forced the closing of many Toledo area schools. St. Francis was no exception. The state congress allowed fifteen days of closing time that would not have to be made up at the end of the year. The average temperature for the month of January was about nine degrees — the coldest it's been in Toledo in 103 years! 17.2 inches of snow fell, and skiers, snowmobilers, and other lovers of snow had a picnic, as it were.

To most students, the dances are the most important events of the year.

This school year, East Wind, Living Dead, Spike, Fayreweather, and Transition have all been escorted into the "The Pit" by the Student Council Dance Committee, headed by Jeff Kimble and Paul Juhasz.

These dances attracted students from other schools, including St. Ursula, Notre Dame, McAuley, St. John's, and Central.

As power passes on from one senior class to the next, the direction that Knight Spirit will take is determined. For the past year, the Spirit of '77 led the Knights through many uplifting victories, and through many painful defeats.

Spirit. It was in the skits, in the Alma Mater, in the cheers, in the rallies. It showed in the red and blue, the shouting signs of the hallways. Strong on the field, on the court, on the mat, in the pool. In the crowd. When the game was lost, it kept the Knight pride from shattering. Spirit. The cheerleaders had it. Spirit

Week flowed with it, even though we lost. But that didn't matter because we still had it. It was in the pride of all activities at St. Francis. It showed. "We've got spirit, yes we do, we've got spirit, how 'bout you?"

CITY LEAGUE PLAYER

OF THE YEAR

The 1976 football season can easily be termed a successful one.

The race for the Blue Division championship was close as usual. The Knights again shared this position with St. John's who ranked highly in the state computer poll until their loss to Stritch.

Because the Titans lost their bid in the state playoff, the Knights' last hopes of playing in the city championship game were foiled.

Sevenich talks to his assistants.

The Knights' final record of 7-2 can be summed up in the following way:

In the two non-league night games, the Knights whipped Whitmer 21-7 and shut out Sandusky 10-0 in a defensive battle.

In the next game against Central on a rain-soaked TU astroturf, the Knights choked 7-6.

The next two games netted 62 points as the powerful Knight offense proved its experience against Rogers and Cardinal Stritch.

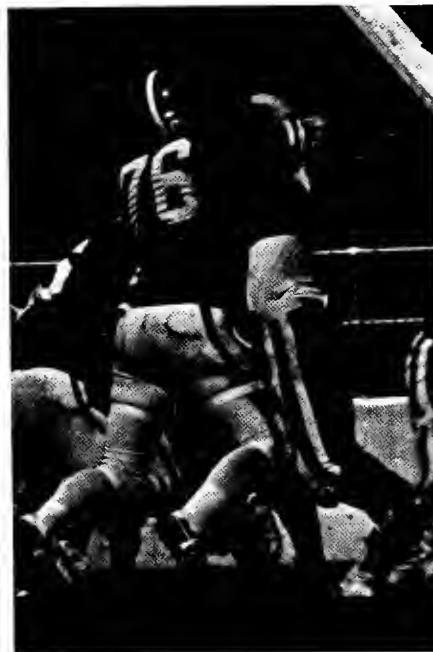

The other loss was handed to the Knights by none other than St. John's 14-0. "One of these years we will come out on top," everyone says.

The Knights regained momentum and tallied three impressive victories against Bowsher, Libbey, and Waite.

Doug Allen has Whitmer's Rick Caputo on the run in third quarter action at Whitmer.

Perhaps the most impressive result of the 1976 season was the performance of senior tailback Mike Kennedy. Mike shattered records with his blazing speed and quick moves.

Mike rushed for 1,207 yards which surpasses Marty Huff's record of 1,191 yards in 1966. He also broke loose in the Bowsher game to establish a record of 87 yards for the longest run in the history of the school.

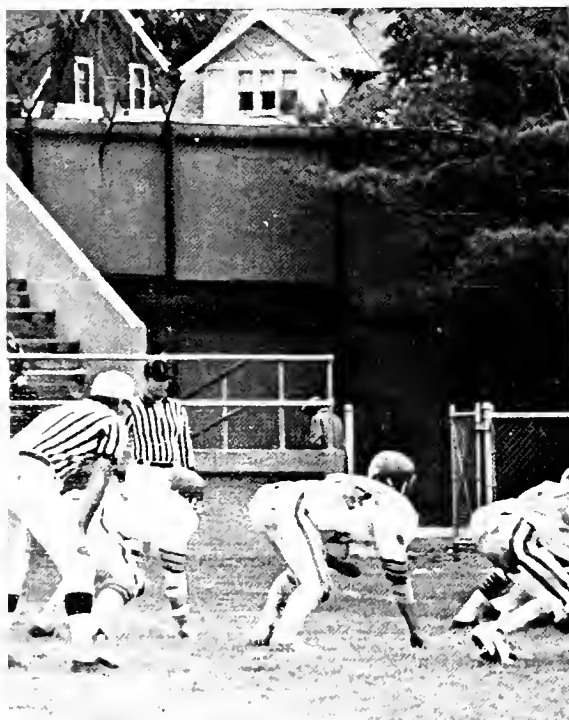

Mike was named first team All-City, first team All-District, and finally, the City League Player of the Year.

Other players receiving honors included Bob Kahle and Carey Kowalski who were named to the first team All-City. Carey also made the All-District team and received special mention at the state level.

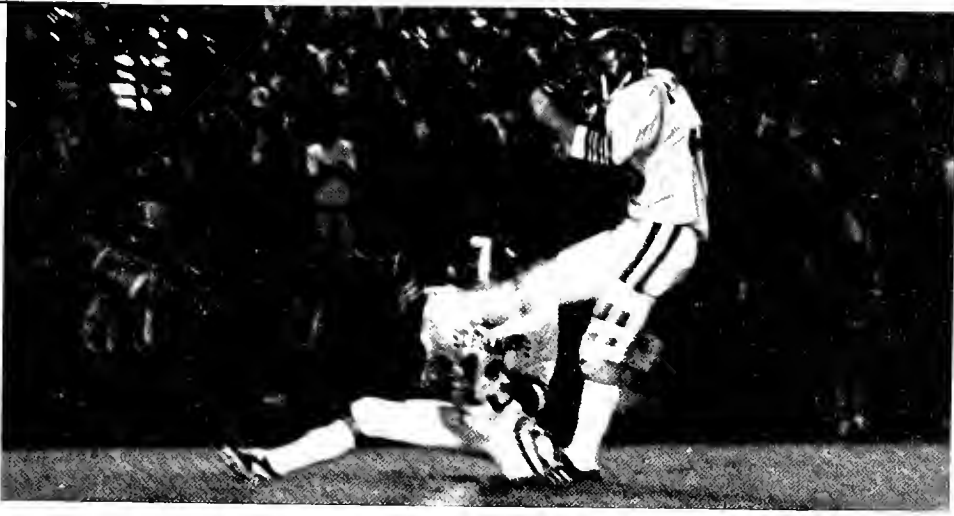

Tom Seeman was named captain of the All-Academic Football team with a perfect 4.0 average. Other seniors representing St. Francis were Doug Allen, Bob Kahle, Carey Kowalski, Kevin McManus, Tom Noe, Brian Nowak, and Bill Szaroleta.

Knights shaft Titans to take City Crown

Under the first year coaching of Father Robert Healy, the 1976 golf team captured the City Championship. The key to this year's success was the return of five lettermen whose experience brought consistently good rounds.

Seniors carrying the team were Mark Dreher, Jay Palicki, Cam Smith, and Dave Torchia. Smith and Torchia were named to the All-City team and junior Mike O'Donnell was medalist in the City Championship.

Dave Torchia was medalist in the district tournament with a 77. This score gave him a bid in the state tournament but weather conditions were unbearable and Dave played bogie golf that couldn't place.

On the 12th at Riverby, Palicki is on his way to a birdie.

Harriers stumble through l-o-n-g season

This year's Knight harriers worked very hard, but they didn't get the results that were hoped for. In early mornings before school, the Knights ran miles and miles to keep in shape not knowing how many more miles would be run after school.

The work unfortunately didn't produce a worthy record. Youth may have been a factor with only three seniors, two juniors, and three sophs.

Another factor may have been the absence of Ottawa Park as a practice course, City League meets were run at Collins Park which is a basically flat course.

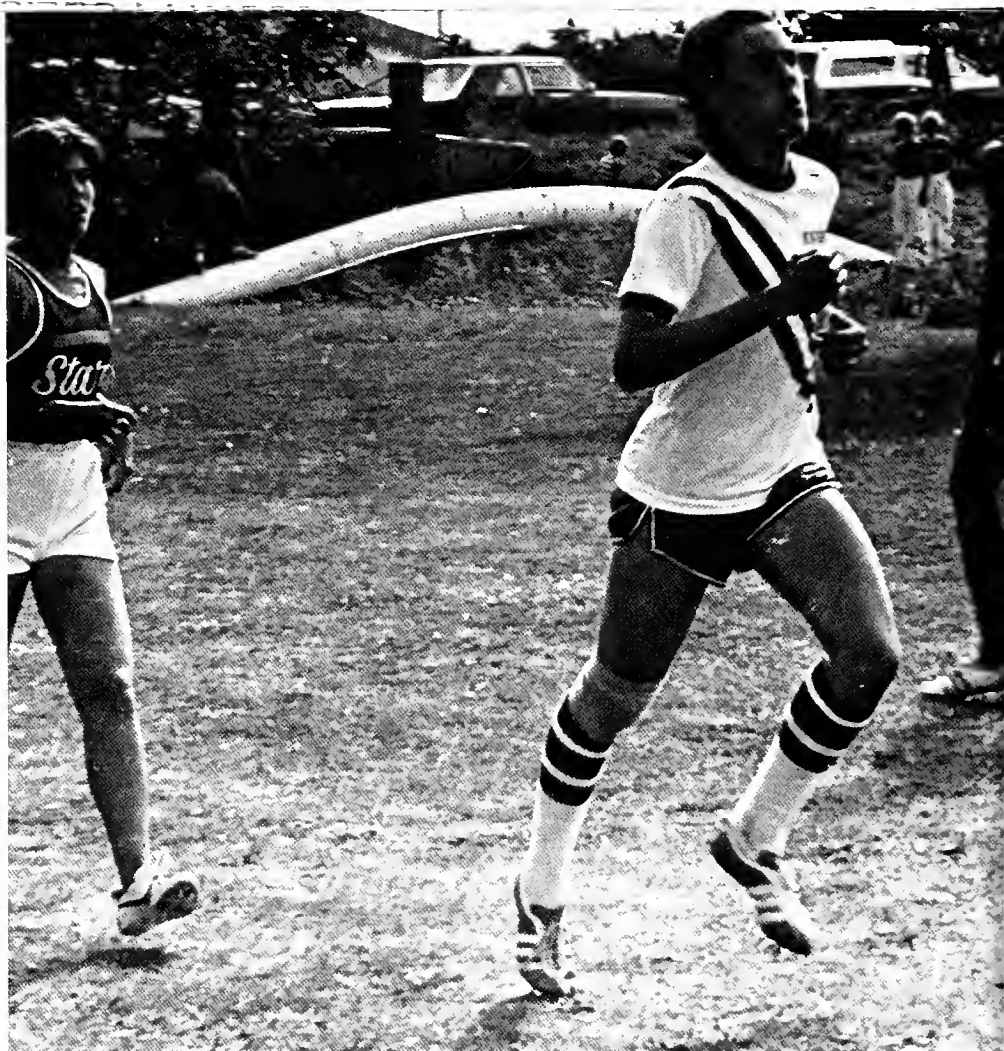

Mark Michalak legs it out at Collins Park.

Head coach Mark Lewis felt that the Knights didn't reach a level of seriousness in competition.

Graduating seniors that have long been involved in the Knight cross country program are David Szumigala, Mark Michalak, and Jack Filka.

The team shared in the good times as well as the bad. Perhaps spirit carried the team through defeat.

Forensics

The Forensics Team members load up the school van and a wagon full of evidence, clothing, and other materials needed for a long week-end tourney.

The forensics team is not a seasonal group like other activities. Its season is year-round, overlapping even years.

Team members spend many hours in practice and competition. Although it may seem like a lot of work, members of the team gain many skills: learning how to think quickly on one's feet, communicating effectively, and forming friendships in one's travels.

The better-known part of forensics is debate. Each year the debate team argues a national topic decided upon by the National Forensic League. The 1976-77 topic is, "Resolved: That a comprehensive program of penal reform should be adopted throughout the United States."

Extemper Dave Andryc prepares by using newspaper clippings and summarizing on file cards.

Duane Carr reads a magazine article and underlines the major points for his speech.

The varsity debate team was made up of Joe Kolanko, Kevin Moenter, Mike Swartz, Mike Rywalski, Ed Santiago, and Tom Horninger.

Mrs. Esther Kalmbach was the head debate coach and forensics director.

Mrs. Kalmbach, along with Mr. Steve Rayman, University of Toledo law student and former high school debater, molded the team into national competitors.

The other half of forensics was individual events. There were six IE events: boys' and girls' extemporaneous speaking; original oratory; and dramatic, humorous, and oratorical interpretation.

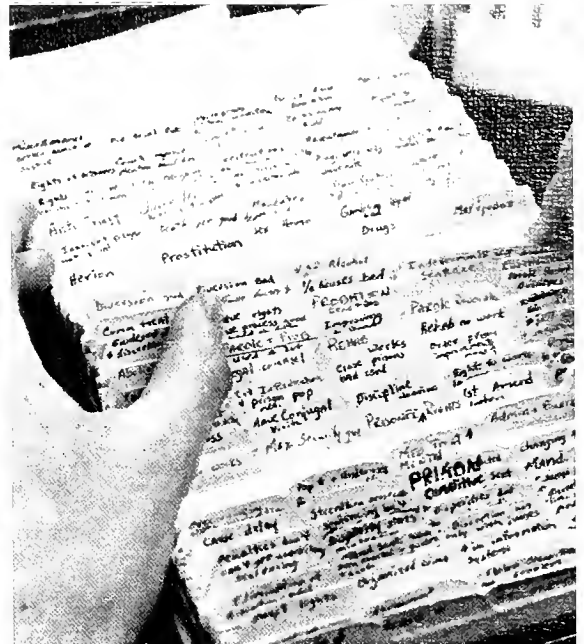

Extemp involved giving a speech with only thirty minutes preparation. Some extemp topics included: "What's ahead for China after Mao?" "Is OPEC breaking up?" and "What are the challenges facing Jimmy Carter?"

Original oratory entailed writing a speech that had to do with an important American social, economic, or political problem. The student had to memorize the speech and present it before a judge.

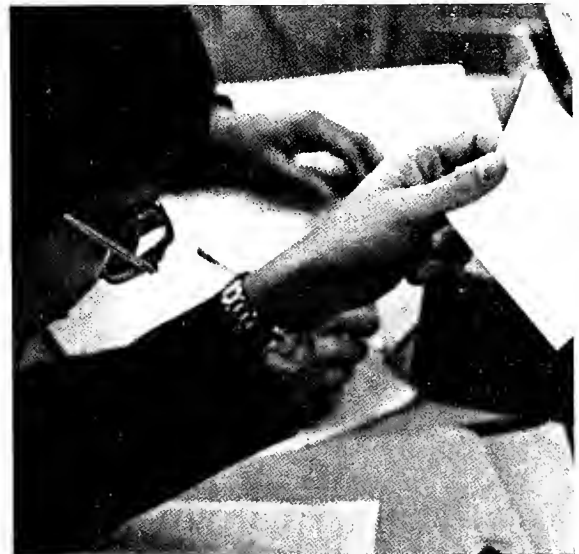

Tom Gibney re-reads "original" before round of competition.

Debate evidence is kept on file cards to keep it orderly and accessible for use.

Duane Carr and Dave Andryc read over magazine articles to prepare for their expemporaneous speeches on the presidential election.

Mike Swartz and Kevin Moenter search for evidence to use in their rebuttal speeches.

Some of this year's originals have been written about growing old, about lack of hero worship, and about fake beauty.

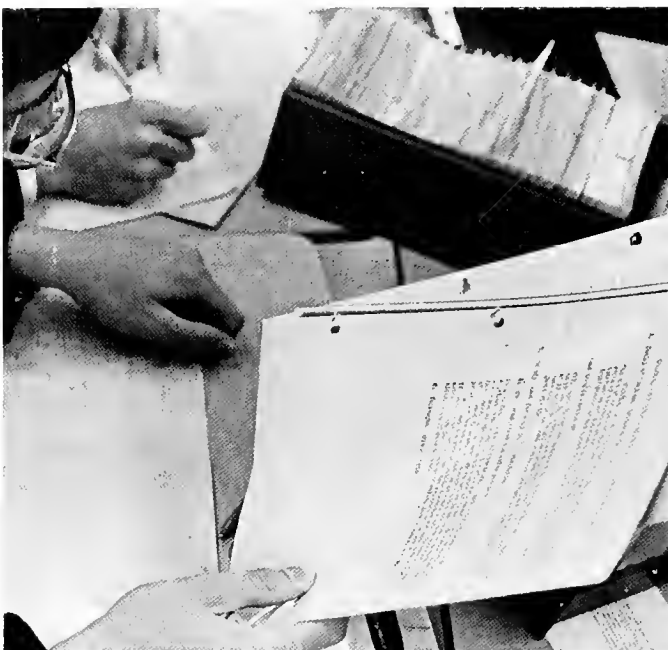

Dramatic, humorous, and oral interpretation involved memorizing a specific piece of literature and presenting it in a particular style.

The varsity IE team consisted of Duane Carr, Tom Gibney, Dave Andryc, John Priebe, Bob Niedzielski, and John Reas.

The IE team was coached by Mr. Loren Shearer, Miss Anne Leitnick, and Mr. Jerry Lebowitz.

Impressive showings were made in Pittsburgh, Louisville, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, and Detroit.

The team also attended the Catholic Forensics League National finals in Milwaukee and the National Forensics League nationals in Seattle.

Mike Swartz and Kevin Moenter review their case in between rounds to convince judge that their position is the better one.

Knights gain experience

Before the start of the 1976-1977 basketball season, Knight rooters were wondering just what this year's team might do. They were coming off a 4-14 record from the year before and were starting this season under a new coach, Mr. Val Glinka.

The Knights had lost six players to graduation, and although the starting five had gained some experience, the team as a whole was youthful. The Knights opened the season with 11 juniors on the squad.

After opening losses to Southview and Central, many fans wondered if they were seeing an instant replay of last year. However, the team came around and finished 11-10. They were sectional finalists and they tied a school record for most games played in a season, 21.

Brian

Junior Brian Rowan continued to make progress this season as he led the team in time played, field goal and free throw percentage, offensive, defensive and total rebounds, and total points scored. The play of the 6'6" center-forward also drew the attention of other city coaches. His reward: being named to the All-City second team. He also gained leadership experience this year, as he was named co-captain by his teammates.

Jeff lofts in shot against Stritch.

Jeff

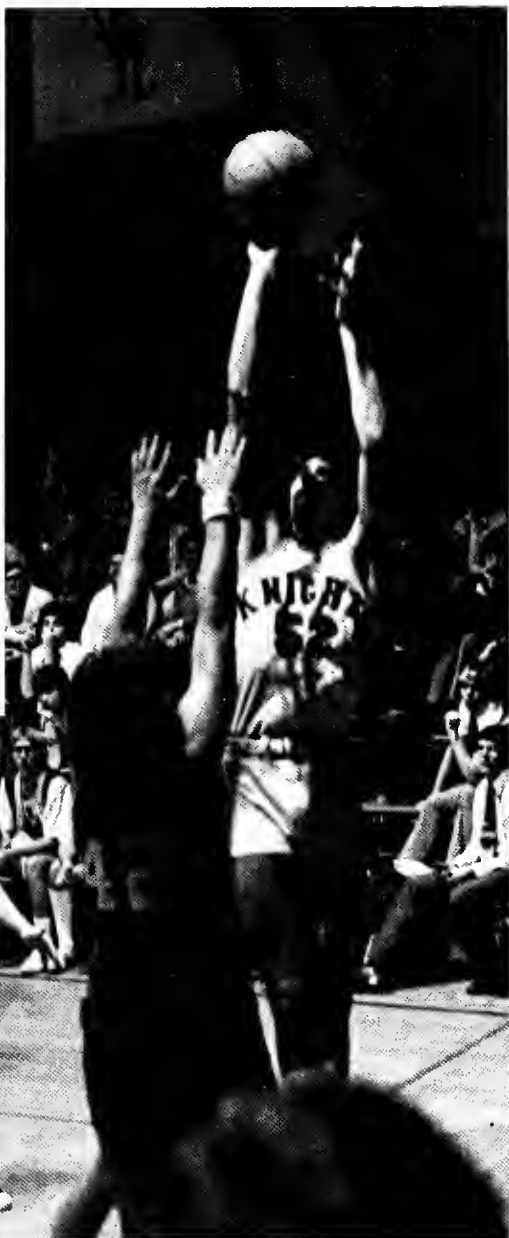

Center Jeff Greenwalt definitely showed signs of progress this year as he cracked the starting line-up and gave the Knight roundballers yet another "stilt" with which to hit the opposition. The team looks for the 6'6" center to grow even tougher next year. The coaches also feel that he is starting to live up to the promise he showed as a J.V.

Junior Jim Emmenecker perfects his ability to free-style before the big meet with St. Xavier.

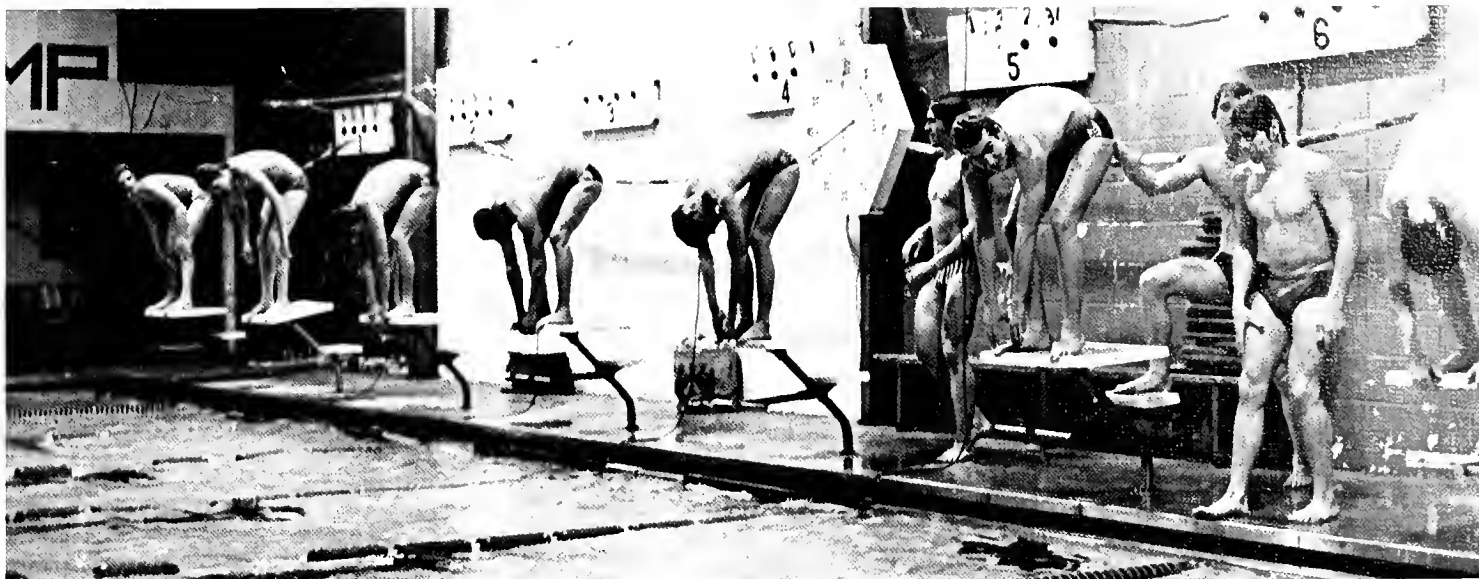

The 1976-1977 edition of the SFS swimming team had a definite mission to accomplish this year: prove to the rest of the state that the loss of several great swimmers, led by Marc Schlatter, would not end the Knights' reign as a superior team.

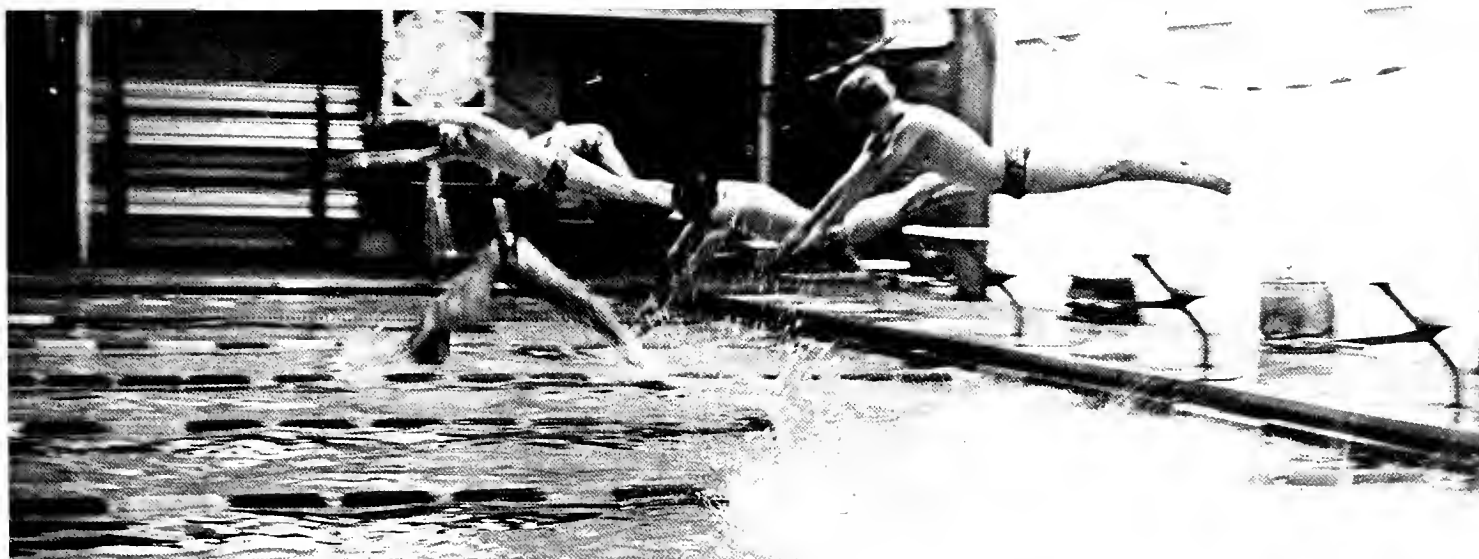

Led by Coach Dennis Graves and his theory of hard work in practice equals teamwork in the meets, the aqua-Knights flourished under the leadership of 10 seniors, Co-Captains Ed Goodman, Mark Bevington, Doug Conrad and Doug Lewandowski.

Senior Knights Tim Smale, Nick Daudelin, Bill Bruecken, Mike Jones, Derek Clark, and Dick Lewandowski also helped lead the Knights to their 12th straight district title.

The team had championships in the breaststroke and backstroke with Tim Heck and Doug Conrad. The 200 Medley relay and the 400 free-style teams also won, while Brain Tansey won the 500 freestyle. Overall, the team beat its nearest opponent by almost 200 points. The next week, the team improved its showing in the state meet over the previous year by finishing 5th as opposed to last year's 6th.

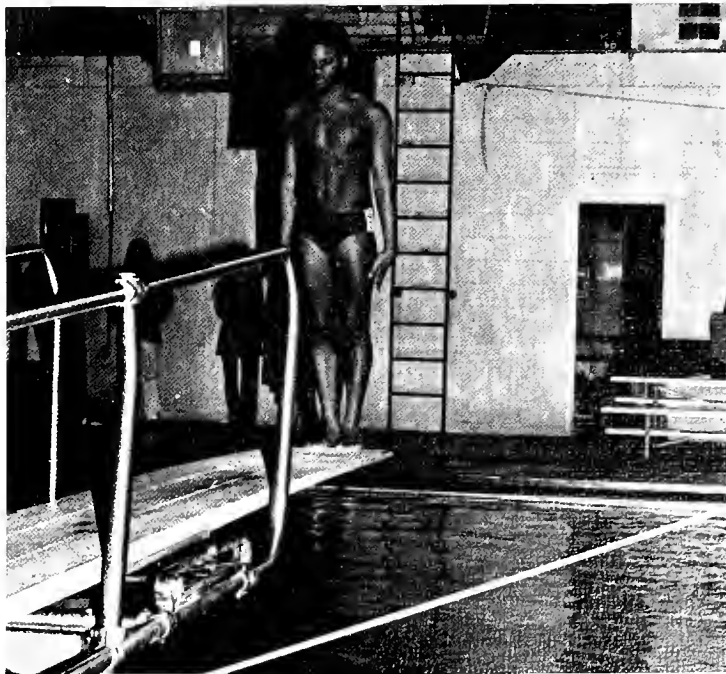

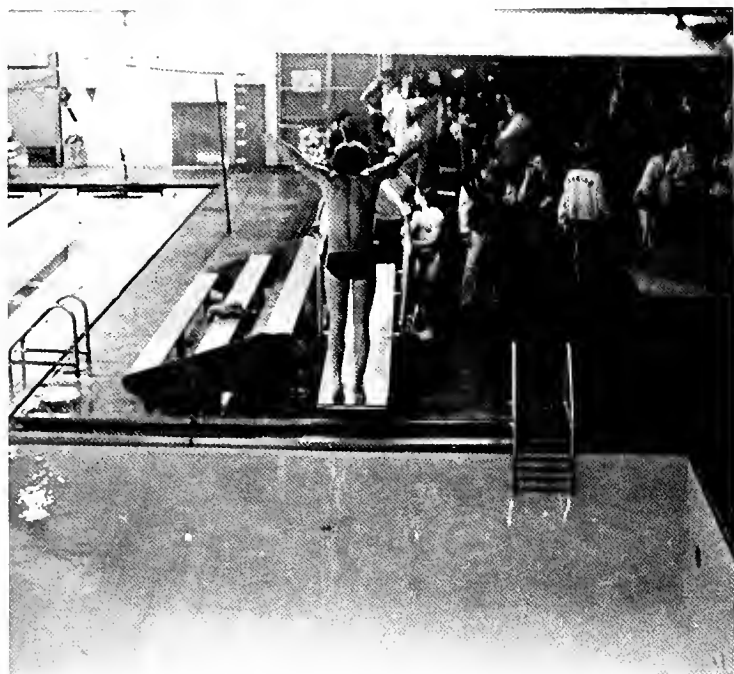

Lewandowski, Conrad and other Knight swimmers get set to take the plunge as the tankers face a do or die situation against Findlay in the Swamp.

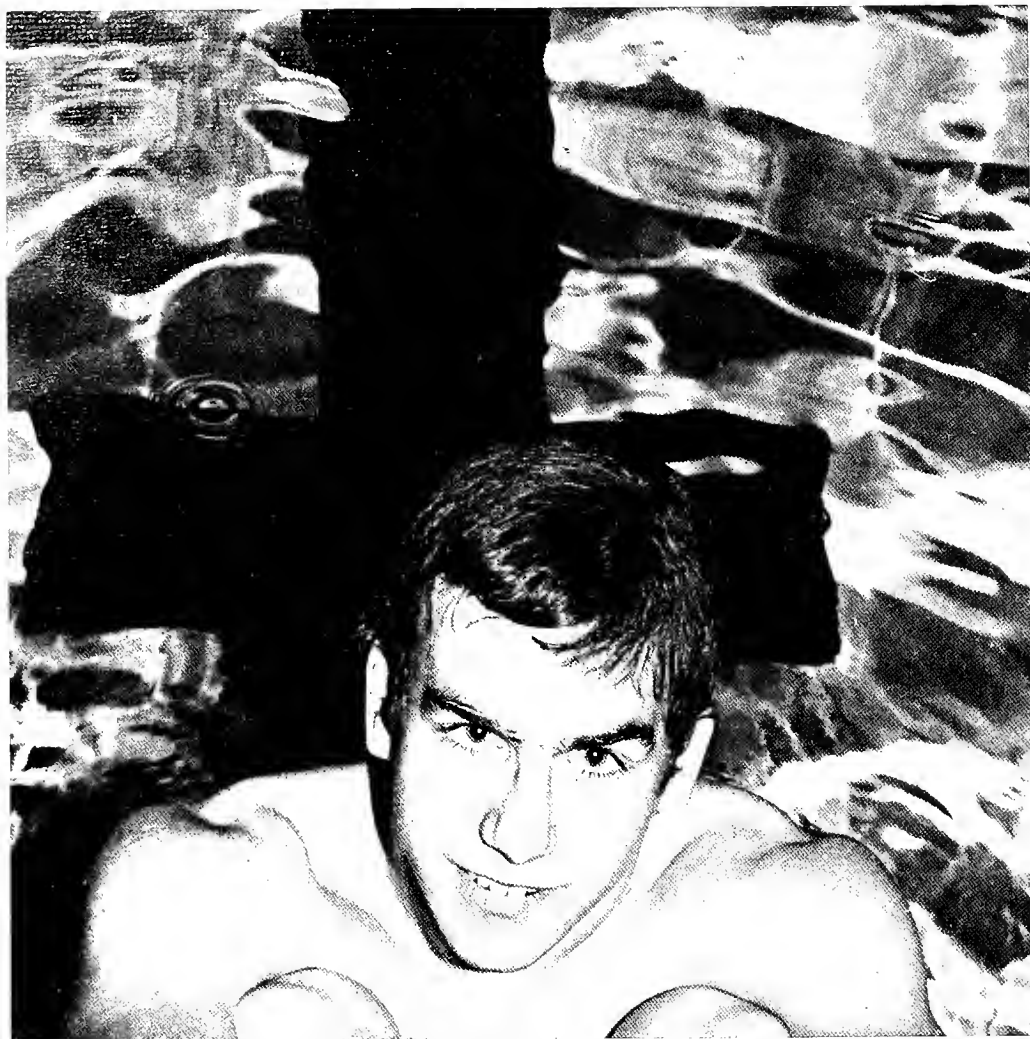

Knights open early advantage as Conrad and Lewandowski are in water and Bevington is on his way as tankers start to open up a lead.

Senior Mike Jones sets to make his 1-meter dive at the Swamp.

Frosh Greg Patterson ponders dive and was 4th in districts.

Brian Tansey, junior, awaits next race.

Junior Jim Emmenecker shows how to properly perform the butterfly stroke as he looks toward next year and a state championship trophy.

Coach Butch Graves gets set to send Aqua-Knights into watery battle.

Sophomore Kevin Carmony sets the pace again as knights win.

Another in long line of Knight swimmers spends free time working out in the swamp. This hard work won the team 5th place in state.

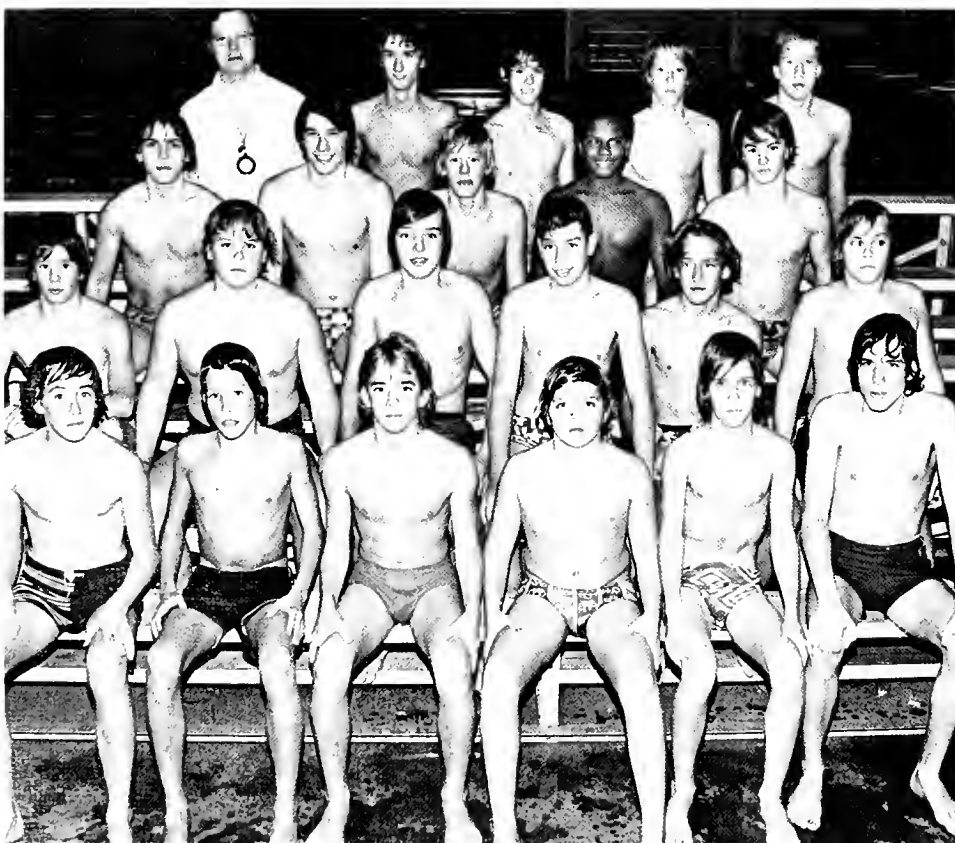

DIVERS: Jeff Grohnke, Ed Goodman, Greg Patterson, Mike Jones.

Chess Team

The 1976 edition of the SFS chess team got off to its best start in recent memory as the team opened in first place and never lost its lead. Coach Steve Loomis expresses supreme confidence in his "invincible" first team, but he feels the second team needs more work, but he thinks they will come around in time for the tournament.

Seniors Paul DeCant and Jack Conn practice and sharpen their chess skills.

BOWLING Keglers Roll On

The 1976-1977 bowling season was another banner year for Father Ed Chrzanowski and the SFS bowling teams.

Last year's varsity (National League) team finished in first and did as well this year, winning the first half crown.

Leading the team were seniors Frank Arvay and Brian Nowak; and juniors Jim Baird, Kevin Smith, John LoCascio and Bob Ivansco.

The Knights also had 2 teams in the American League (considered a JV and frosh league).

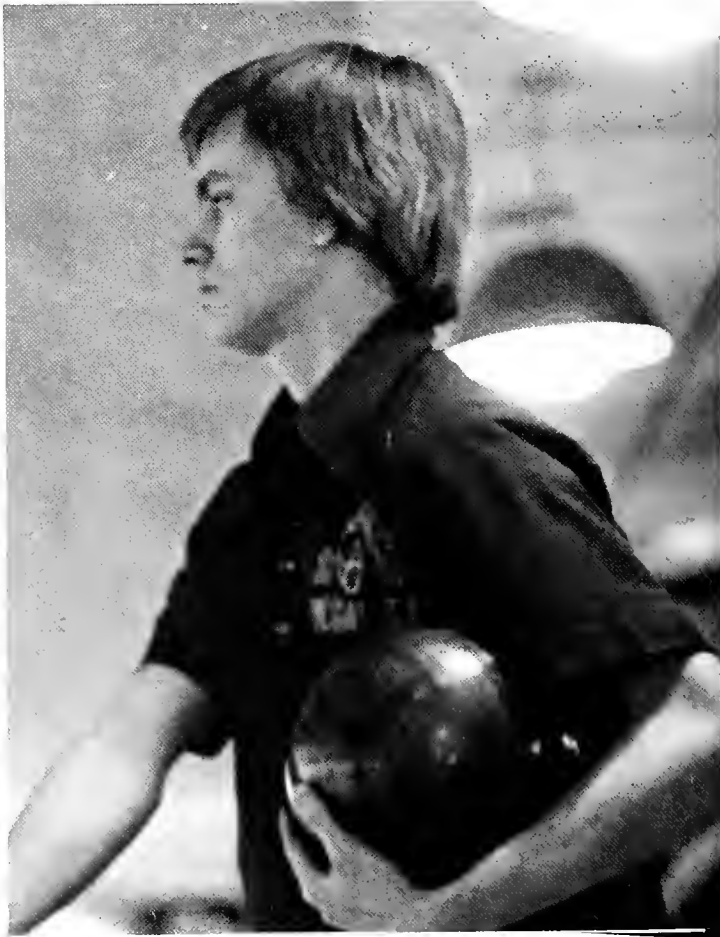

Coach Chrzanowski said they got off to slow starts, but both teams improved. Among the newcomers were Marc Banachowski, Brian Jagodzinski and Scott Lykowski.

With Dick Weber watching, Arvay rolls one for "New York" hit on Alley 17 at Imperial.

Senior Brian Nowak dries his hands,

WSFK-TV 5

To entertain and to inform are the main functions of WSFK, the closed-circuit TV station which operates on Channel 5.

Any freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior is eligible to join the staff.

Crew members learn video taping, basic camera operations, sound mixing, broadcasting techniques, interviewing, commenting, organization, and presentation.

A 40-minute program was broadcast every Thursday morning.

Mr. Robert Stucker and Brother Robert Jackson were moderators.

The Lance

The Lance is a student news-feature magazine, which published seven issues.

The Lance contained news, features, sports articles, art, and photography.

All students — freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors — were eligible to join the staff.

The Lance moderator was Mr. James Kwiatkowski.

Accolade

The Accolade, the school yearbook, gives students the chance to learn photography, layout and design techniques, and the pressure of working according to deadlines.

Work starts at the beginning of the year and covers all aspects of life at St. Francis.

Mr. James Kwiatkowski was moderator of the Accolade.

Student Council

Student Council was the main student governing body at St. Francis de Sales High School. The group was responsible for such activities as dances, Spirit Week, picnics, and various parties.

The council met one Tuesday each month.

Members were elected last spring by popular vote of the student body after a week of campaigning highlighted by a "student convention" on Friday followed by a vote.

Water Polo

After reigning five years as state champions and being dropped as a team sport, the Water Polo team finished as the number two ranked team in the state.

Water polo was dropped because of financial difficulties and the fact that they were not sanctioned by the body governing high-school sports in this state, the Ohio High School Athletic Association.

Hockey Club

The hockey club had local, state, and Canadian competition in its schedule this year.

A Cleveland team traveled here this fall and the club visited a Warren Park, Canada, team over Easter vacation. In addition the club had tough local competition which included such teams as Waite, Whitmer, and Bedford.

The club started practice long before the first game and the hard work apparently paid off by producing a solid well-balanced team. Their leadership was provided by Coach Steve Zaleski and Captain Steve Nadaud.

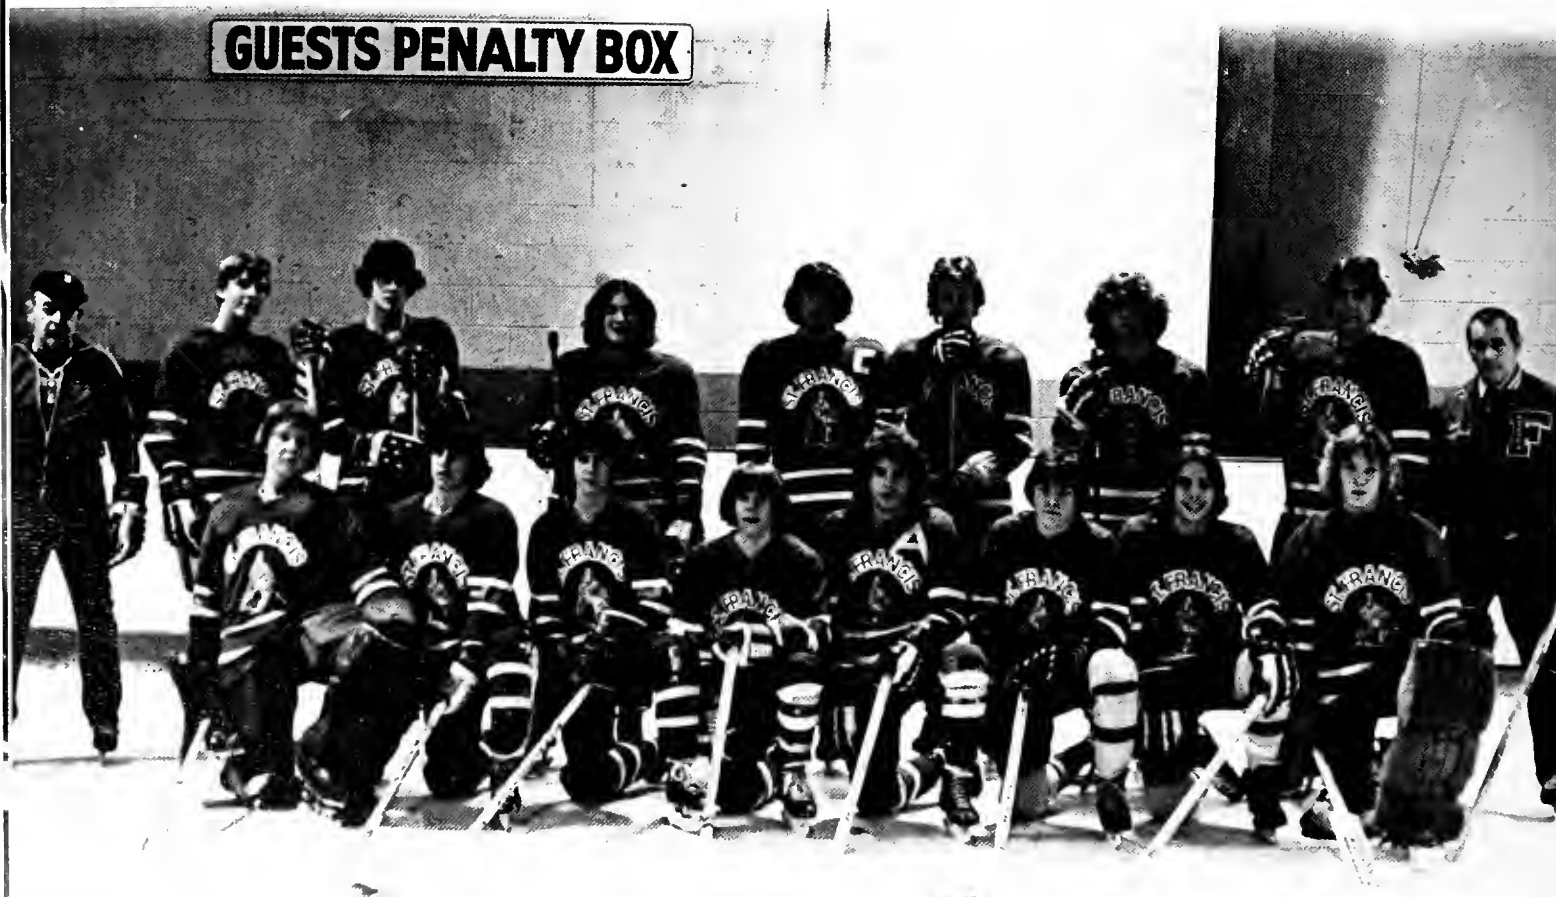

Twice-a-week practices prepared the club for 19 regular season games which were played either at the Ice House or at Tam O'Shanter.

ACADEMICS

Freshman Academics

From the first day I entered the doors at St. Francis, I experienced an atmosphere completely different from the one I had had in grade school, especially the academics. Religion courses were more advanced. Becoming a total person was stressed more than anything else. The school requires me to take at least two years of a language. French, German, and Latin are offered. J'ai choisi le Francais. In addition to the grammar I learned practical applications of the language and even a little about the country's culture.

A trusting Kevin Grohnke falls back into Father James Doll's arms in a physical illustration of trust.

Two teachers make their points very clear: Father James Doll with scripture readings in religion class, and Father John McMenemy by emphasizing his idea with gestures.

Le professeur de Francais Steve Loomis converses with French I student Stan Ganthier. Father John McMenemy drives home German pronunciations to his students.

Father Francis Schimscheiner teaches the use of the clause to freshmen Greg Tucker and Matt Towse.

Jeff Harrington scans the pages of his grammar and composition book.

"Well Men, I really don't know," says Father Thomas Landgraff to his frosh biology class.

Extensive note taking is an integral part of every class.

English I includes basic grammar, vocabulary, descriptive and narrative writing, and developmental reading. These courses elaborated on the fundamental concepts I learned in grade school. I took physical science, where I studied background information pertaining to biology, chemistry, and physics. Other freshmen had courses in biology, the study of the human body, genetics, and botany. Both of these courses involved extensive lab work.

Math, as usual, was the toughest course. I failed it twice.

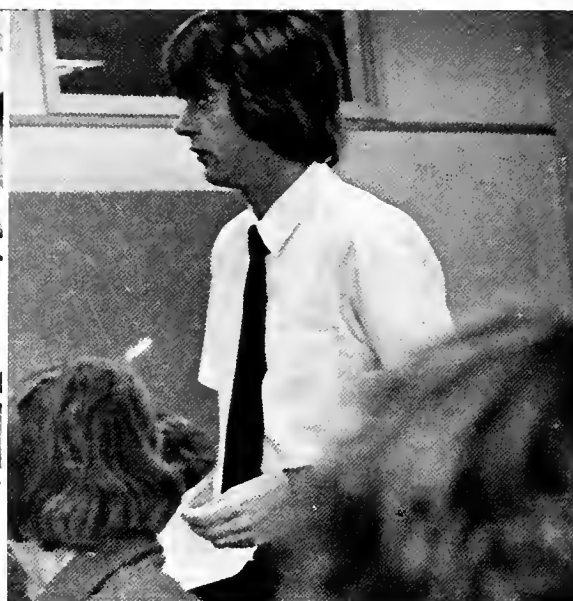

Some students took pre-algebra, an introduction to algebra.

In Algebra I, I learned to use logic and formulas in order to arrive at a value for the mysterious variable "x."

(Note to future freshmen: "x" is almost always equal to 9.)

I took an in-depth look at the history of our country in social studies class.

Everything from Washington to Watergate was covered.

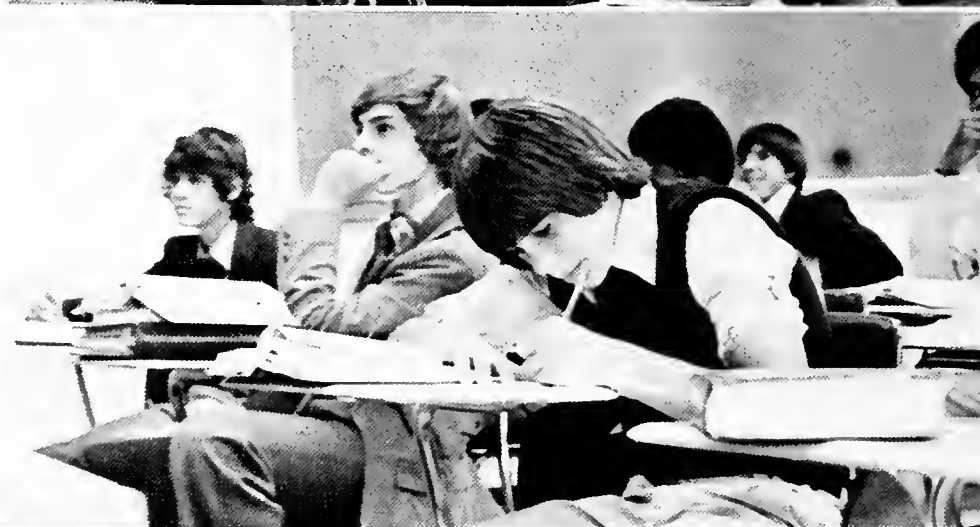

Future microbe hunters Jeff Warren and Larry Swint peer intently through their microscopes.

Mr. James Roth ponders a frosh's question.

In pre-algebra, Steve Leffler poses a question to himself, answers it, and jots the answer in his notebook.

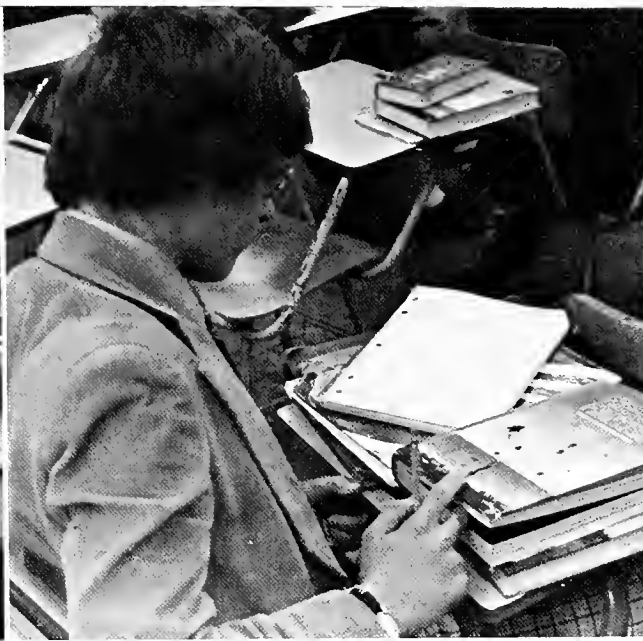

Using knowledge accumulated during class, Steve Schlageter solves the assigned problems.

Mr. Roth goes to any lengths in order to foil any would-be cheaters.

As a freshman I developed not just intellectually and spiritually, but physically as well. Gym classes, encompassing all major sports, are a requirement for all freshmen. I also had to take one quarter of swimming. Besides all of these subjects I learned other vital things: like not entering the Senior Lounge and that we have only four minutes to change classes. My total experience as a freshman was — uh-h-h — a trip!

Sophomore Academics

As I strutted through the doors for my second consecutive year as a Knight, I felt confident. I contrasted this to the sinking feeling I had had at this time last year.

I really felt confident.

I knew where all my classes were.

Boy, did I ever feel confident.

Maybe even a bit overconfident.

Then the bell rang.

That's when I realized how tough this year was going to be.

Suddenly, I didn't feel too confident.

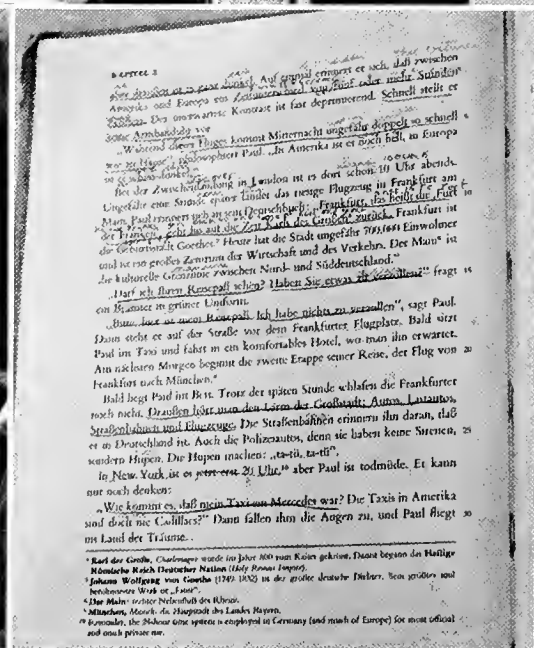

Even the religion courses were tougher. I studied conscience and its relation to Christian morality, what it is, how it 'works.' I found the language courses more in-depth: more time was spent speaking grammatically correct sentences and studying a little more about the country's people. About a ton of verb tenses was studied. I spent half the night memorizing dialogs.

Father Willem Simon and Jim Blanchard discuss conscience in religion class.

John Krause, Rick Morsches, Jeff Dessum, and Ted Drake discuss the sacrament of baptism in all its phases.

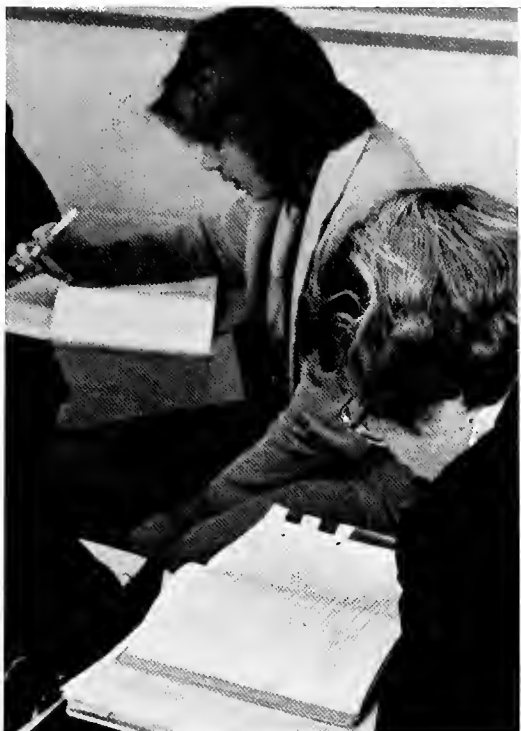

German II book contains a great many narratives.

Mr. Mark Lewis converses in French with Keith Bosch, Mike Lynch, and Jim Potrzebowski.

Kevin Kendzierski and Craig Pomeroy study German paragraphs to be presented in front of class.

Brother Robert Jackson stresses the importance of good grammar to an English II class.

Richard Konrath, Dennis Tucker, and Greg Purcell find Brother Jackson's method of teaching frequently humorous.

Composition poses a challenge to Tim Kazmier.

A sophomore finds time for 40 winks in chemistry.

Mark Comte, Gerry Klug, and others copy a diagram off the board into their notebooks for future reference.

The next foreign language I took was English II. In composition, we attempted to write correct sentences and paragraphs. And then there was good old 'Introduction to Literature.'

And then there was this tremendous headache I was getting.

Biology seemed easier. Some kids had taken it last year. Bio covered such topics as anatomy, genetics, and, of course, photosynthesis. Those who studied chemistry their sophomore year got to the real basics of just about everything: chemicals and their interactions.

Algebra II included such useful things as trig, pi, and how to solve simultaneous equations in two variables; and some students practiced a little advanced neck stretching, at least until they were 'busted' a time or two.

The function of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches was the main subject matter in government class.

The entire electoral process was covered, gavel to gavel, as they say.

Sophomore biology class outlines a chapter.

John Osinski reviews the makeup of the electron cloud.

Mick Batey finds the value of "x."

John Hamilton draws information from a story problem in order to form an equation.

Mrs. Dorothy Cummings gives a little help to Carlos Santiago.

Sophs listen intently to Father Nicholas Koelzer.

Jeff Ritson describes how a bill is passed in the Senate.

Boxing, soccer, and battleball were but a few of the games played in gym. Polish speedball, a kind of hockey played with a ball thrown at a goal, was by far the most popular game.

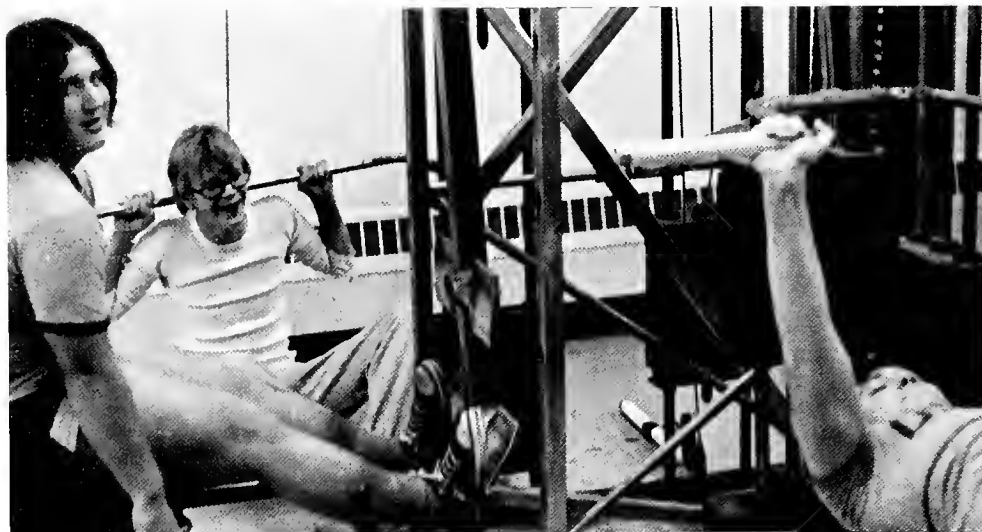

Bob Irelan does upright rowing on the weight machine.

One of the many sophomores who find the college reading room a helpful place in selecting a career.

My sophomore year?
Tough.

Junior Academics

As I strolled self-assuredly into the front doors, opening my junior year, I was amazed at myself, my sense of familiarity with my surroundings. And I felt, well, a bit superior to the frightened frosh and the overbearing sophs.

"Two more years," I thought.
"Two down and two to go."

From beginning to end, my schedule was easier than those of my last two years. Maybe because I got to pick some of my own classes. Take religion.

I myself took two courses in religion. The first was "The Church's Social Mission," which pertained to the history of the Christian faith, how it affected the everyday lives of people throughout history since its conception over two thousand years ago. The other course was "Life in the Spirit" with Miss Russell. This course dealt with the Holy Spirit and its impact on society.

Brother Albert Pietruszinski has a group discussion with his Prayer class.

A guest speaker from the "I Found It" group stresses the meaning of being "born again."

Marty McKelvey, Rulx Ganthier, Joe Cook, and Brian Rowan learn French III conjugations.

Ron Sniegowski prepares for a French quiz.

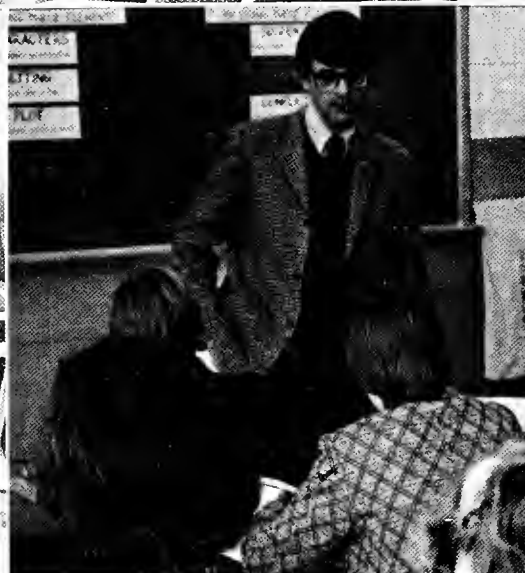

Mr. Steve Loomis discusses "Le Mort du Bridge."

Mr. James Kwitakowski's second period Expository Essay class learns the elements of narration: plot, setting, and characters.

In Expository Essay, Jeff Batanian, Jim Lewandowski, and Tony Ritson listen to a reading of a process essay.

Jeff Grabmeier and Steve Kennedy look over an essay written in an alternating pattern.

Other religion courses were grouped under the titles of Scripture, Moral/Pastoral, and Systematic Theology electives.

I also took a third year of my language, French. Time was spent reading passages from the book, translating them, and memorizing endless vocabulary lists.

English often seemed the toughest language to master.

Expository Essay was one of the two courses I took. I learned how to say what I wanted to say, and get it down on paper accurately. Journalism taught me how to write both news and feature stories.

I had Mr. James Kwiatkowski for both subjects. He was dry and humorless in class.

Geometry.

What can I say?

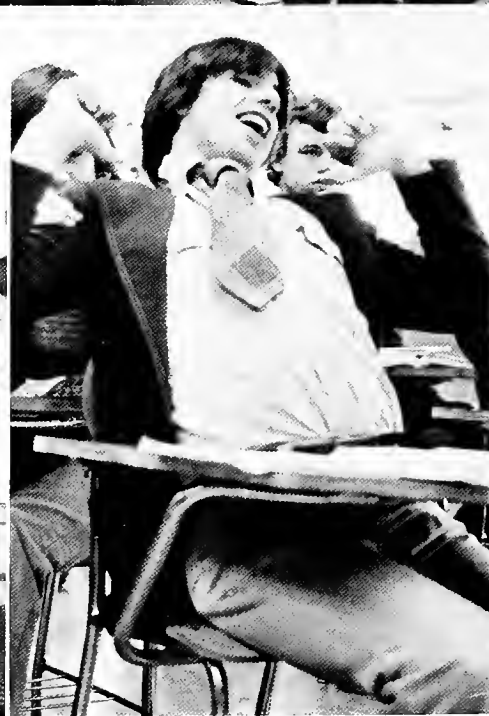

Geometry amazed
and baffled me
with its theorems
and postulates,
using them in order
to prove triangles
congruent.

SAS
Hypotenuse — Leg Perpendicular
bisector.

But I also learned how to think and reason in a logical manner.

Extensive note-taking is an integral part of Mrs. Dorothy Cummings' geometry class.

Keith Large and Brian Palmer use the SSS, ASA, and SAS theorems to prove the congruency of triangles.

Ken Orzechowski, Brian Strong, Kevin Smith, Fred Ziegler, Dan Schlembach, and Rick Wohl ponder the angle bisector theorem.

Rick Wohl taps out a report on "How to Type a Manuscript."

Typing was one subject that never gave me much trouble. I learned home row, then the other two rows. After that, I covered the finer points of typing: manuscripts, short reports, and legal typing. All this and more was under the tutelage of the ever-present Brother Charles Dulin.

Robb Spalding, Chris Owczarzak, and Mike Pigott keep eyes on book and fingers on keys in typing class.

Bill Durako sets his carriage for a 50-space line.

Mr. Dennis Graves and Kurt Stedje talk over physiology.

Most juniors took chemistry. The table of elements, the gas laws, and, of course, the ever-present mole were covered.

Other juniors, who had already taken chemistry, chose another science, such as geology, Advanced Chemistry, Advanced Biology, physiology, or physics. Overall, in fact, the sciences represented one of the most exciting areas of study.

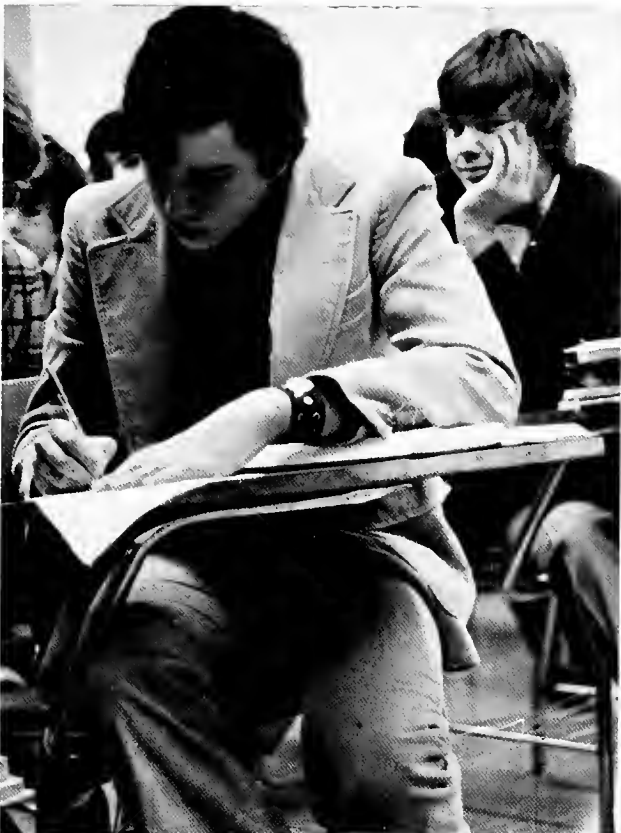

Marty McGowan and Bill Parton discuss cortoleic geo-synclines in geology class.

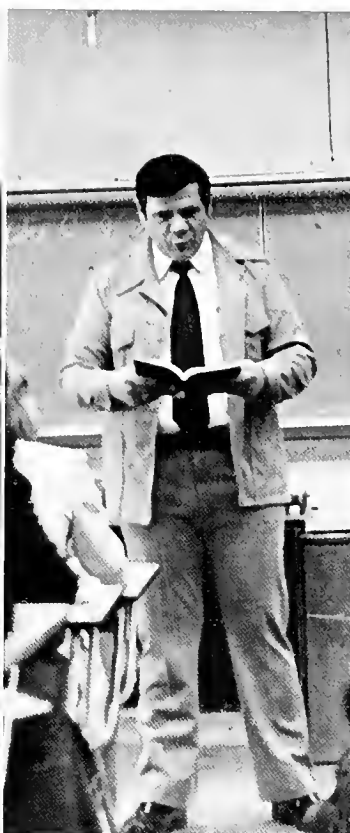

Jim Livecchi and Forrest Lishewski do an experiment in chemistry. Livecchi looks in the lab book to see where he's headed, then places a length of copper wire in the test-tube full of silver nitrate. This is left overnight to let silver crystals form. Lishewski then washes away the crystals into a beaker full of water. The silver is then separated from the water by decanting and weighed on the scale. Then the questions in the back of lab book are answered.

Henry Hamilton reviews law enforcement in Criminal Justice class

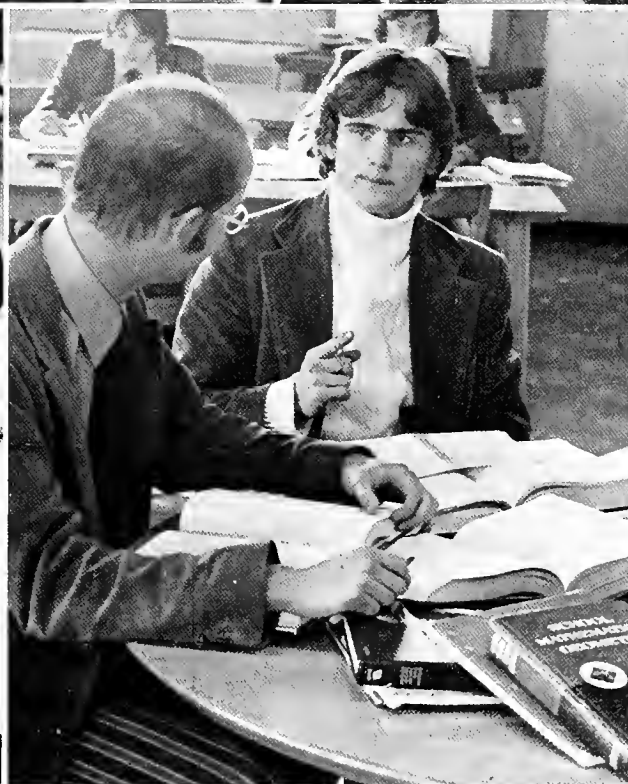

Mr. George Damasco, boots and all, stresses corrections and crime in perspective with today's society.

Courts and the Constitution, Totalitarianism, Socialism and Communism, Criminal Justice, Consumer Economics, Research Topics, and Military History are just some of the parts that make up the social studies program.

I chose Military History and found out about the strategies of all the military geniuses from Hannibal and his elephants to Rommel and his tanks.

Frank Graff and Steve Cain discover that research topics entail hours of research in the library.

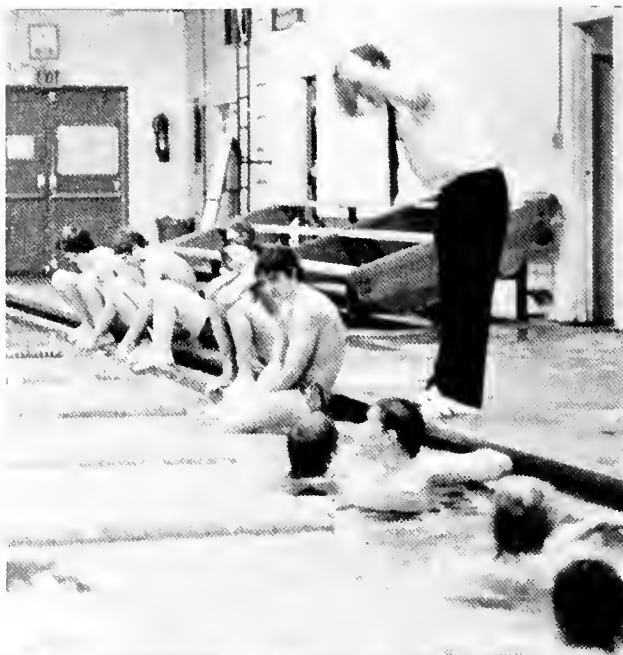

Dick Leffler, Mark Pizza, and Steve Osinski discover the social aspects of crime.

For my final year of phys ed, I had Junior Life-Saving in the pool.
I perfected my technique on the four basic strokes:
freestyle,
sidestroke,
backstroke,
and breaststroke;
and learned the proper way to save a drowning man.

There was also free time to swing on an overhanging rope,
dive, or just fool
around.

Juniors listen to Mr. Dennis Graves explain
the proper way to do the breaststroke.
The stroke is then put to use in a couple of practice
laps.

Senior Academics

As I sauntered up the senior stairs and through the front doors, I realized that I was carrying on a tradition in the life of every senior. I didn't hurry, but continued confidently on toward my destination: religion. Dogmatic Theology was an independent study course in the science of understanding the doctrines of the church and seeing the logic of them.

Religion and, in fact, almost all of my classes, had juniors in it. This seemed to re-affirm my feelings of control and leadership.

Greg Vascik and Steve Kennedy form abstract images of themselves out of Play-Doh in Father John Graden's Faith class.

Father Richard Forti gives a talk on living your life as an Oblate of Saint Francis De Sales.

Gary Mertes casts in his opinion in Father Edward Chrzanowski's marriage class.

Kevin Weiss and Sean Carroll answer questions at the end of a French reading.

Kevin Weiss appears happy about his latest French IV quiz grade.

French IV spent the majority of the time on the reading of short stories and other literature written in French.

English class exposed me to the plays of Shakespeare and also built me up physically as the Shakespeare book was the thickest book that I had ever seen! The Four Masters course in American Literature covered writings of Twain, Hawthorne, Melville, and Steinbeck in depth.

Seniors in Advanced Placement English take notes on "Youth" by Joseph Conrad.

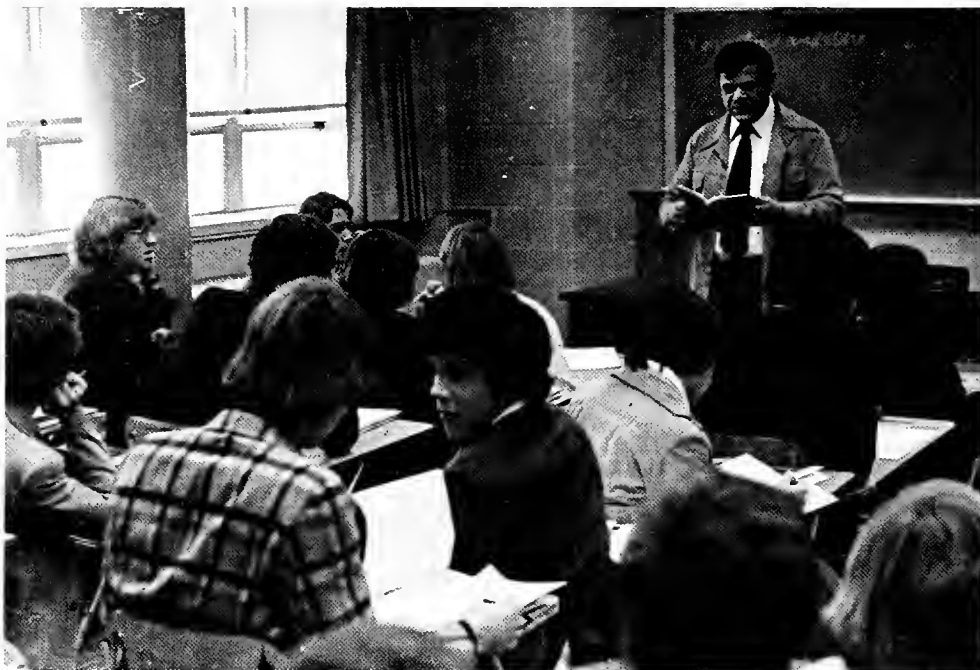

Mr. Robert J. Stucker graphically illustrates the climax of a play in drama class.

Kruse wonders about Father Chrzanowski's interpretation of a story read in class.

Although it isn't required, I took the history courses, Consumer Economics, and Research Topics in American Studies. Economics covered man's direct relationship with the economic world and how I could become a concerned, aware consumer. The research topics course looked into the whys and wherefores of the obvious in American History and government. We also had a lot of trivia questions in that class, requiring many hours in the library.

Gene Zmuda and Gary Morsches try to find out "... the last thing he said" in Criminal Justice.

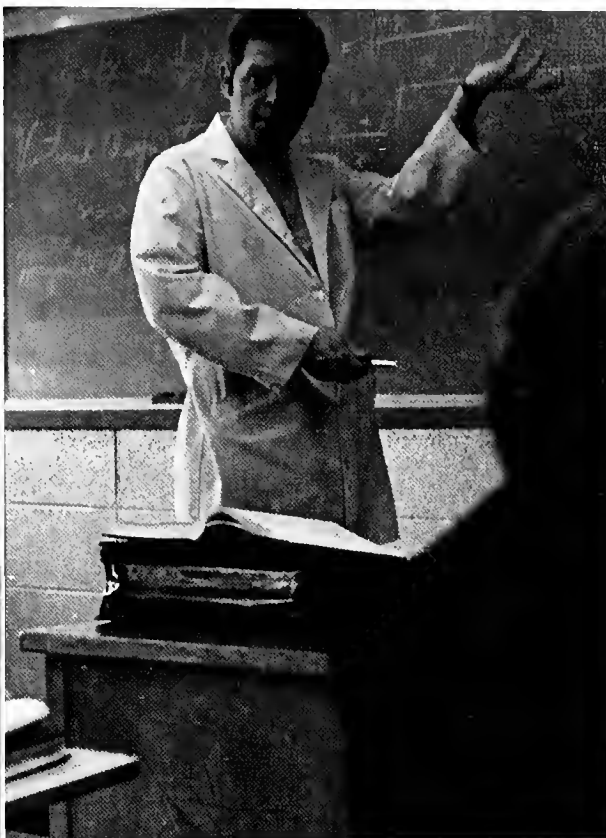

Ed Crotte and Danny Yee flip through some magazines trying to find a few answers for Father Koelzer in his Research Topics class.

Tim Mouch uses the Wall Street Journal in economics class.

Father Finn presents the questions and puzzles in calculus class

I assaulted math armed with my initiative and insanity. The topics bearing the brunt of the assault were sine,
tangent, core,
secant and logs.

The course in calculus centered
on derivatives,
differentials,
related rates,
and $\frac{d}{dx}$ and $\frac{dx}{dy}$, limits,
and implicit.

Steve Schmidbauer needs a clarification
in calculus
class.

Mike McVicker
absorbs knowledge while
Paul Devine has to write it down.

Pre-cal students show various degrees of interest.

Physics amazed me
in that so much
goes on around me
that escaped my notice. Mr. Donald Murad pointed these things out
to me with Newton,
forces, relativity.

Mr. John Wiza
tees up Csaba
Kosza for a par
4 in geology
class.

Mark Juhnke,
Jeff Norton,
Warren Bach, and Mark Conley

physics notes.

John Hasenauer and
Tom Seeman puzzle

Newton.

Jeff Schirm and Bob Odle go over

Joel Schiffler
confers with Don "Doc" Murad
about a physics
experiment.

Greg Rush uses
a free period to get in a little study.

Although I had no scheduled gym
classes, free periods allowed
ample time for me
to use the gym,
play football or
frisbee, or relax
in the senior lounge.

Mike Lishewski,

Brian Nowak
relax in the

After looking at this book you probably have some good impressions and some bad impressions. Before making any judgements, think of the time and energy that has been put into this book. Try to remember that we are high school students making an attempt to record a year as we thought it appeared to the students. At times work on the book was easy, at times it was hard, at times it was fun, and at times it was miserable. Now the work is done, all the times are gone, and all that's left are memories. Most of my memories of those efforts are good ones; memories I will always cherish.

Of course disappointments are inevitable. One personal disappointment came unexpectedly from an individual I once respected a great deal. But even deep disappointments serve as good learning experiences. I'm certain all of us involved will agree that we were most impressed by the invaluable experiences provided by our hard work on this book.

Two years ago, being editor of the Accolade was a dream for me. Now, thanks to many it has become a reality. There is one very special person who did so much that it is difficult to express my gratitude. This person, Miss Ellen Loeffler, among other things, is responsible for the artwork on the cover and numerous pages in my book.

I would like to give special thanks to Tom, Tom, Dave, and Jeff ("Fetch"). There have been virtually hundreds who helped to make this book what it is. To all of these people I would like to say, "Thank you."

Also I want to show my appreciation for the help of Mr. and Mrs. Mandula and their family. Without their hospitality, concern, and understanding, (during the gas shortage which left the publication staff homeless) our third deadline would never have been completed.

The following are some people who in one form or another helped make this book possible:

Dad and Judie
My Family
The Administration
The Staff
Olie and Jimmy
C. Paul Kenney Studio
Mrs. Borne
Bruce Bowers
Steve Byrne
The Toledo Post Office
Mr. and Mrs. James Jenkins
Dr. and Mrs. Richard Loeffler
Mr. and Mrs. John Mandula
Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Noe
Mr. and Mrs. Winfried Walter
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whitman
Father William Fisher
Tim Langenderfer
The McDonald Corporation

There is one other very dedicated person whom was responsible for the production of this book. He is a man who can put up with anything, I think. He is many things to many people, ranging from a friend to a mediator to an advisor. To me he will probably always be a person I will never completely understand. All the same, I would like to convey an extra big thanks to my Advisor, Mr. James Kwiatkowski.
